

THE ART OF SURVIVAL

Enduring the Turmoil of Tule Lake

Image Credits

Segregants Arrive at Tule Lake. Densho Encyclopedia. 20 January 2014 1:06 PST. <http://archive.densho.org/Resource/popupenlarged.aspx?i=denshopd-i37-00297>

Courtesy of Densho and the National Archives

Stewart, Francis, Tule Lake Relocation Center, Newell, California. A view showing the artistic way in which the evacuees decorate the exterior of the barracks to make them more homelike. Department of the Interior, War Relocation Authority. 11/03/1942. NARA ID: 536360 - Courtesy of the National Archives

Renunciant roused at Tule Lake jail. Courtesy of Densho and the National Archives (Photographer R. H. Ross)

Lee, Russell, Los Angeles, California. The evacuation of Japanese-Americans from West coast areas under United States Army war emergency order. Japanese try to sell their belongings. Farm Security Administration / Office of War Information, (Library of Congress) 4/1942. Reproduction Number: LC-USF34-072258-D
^Courtesy of the Library of Congress

Stewart, Francis, Tule Lake Relocation Center, Newell, California. Thaws turn the streets and firebreaks into seas of mud, and makes difficult motor transportation through the center. Department of the Interior, War Relocation Authority. 02/02/1943. NARA ID: 536919 denshopd-i37-00350. Courtesy of Densho and the National Archives

Shell Flower Corsage, Tule Lake, California. 2013
© Hiroshi Watanabe, 2014

Hair Brush, No Bristles, Tule Lake, California
Lava Beds National Monument, 2011
© Hiroshi Watanabe, 2014

Chair made by Mitsuo Kaida in 1944, Tule Lake, California
Japanese American Museum of San Jose, 2009
© Hiroshi Watanabe, 2014

Rice Bowl Made in Japan, Tule Lake, California.
Found at Tule Lake Internment Camp Dump Site, 2011.
© Hiroshi Watanabe, 2014